A floating lure with a lip designed so it swims just sub-surface, flat flanks split into two segments and distinct clicks caused by the segments moving. What is new is the elastomer tail that pushes more water on straight retrieves and is more mobile during pauses allowing you to provoke takes from recalcitrant fish simply by trembling the line. The BLAST BOE can be fished "walking the dog" style without moving too far so you can keep the lure in a specific target zone- gaps in weedbeds, next to features or holes. The rolling swimming action and ability to push plenty of water is perfect for European pike, black bass and big perch anglers and can be fished in waters of any size. Try adding a John Weight to alter the density of the lure to switch from a suspended bait to a slow or fast sinking model. This makes the Blast Bone a surprisingly versatile choice that will surprise you in all sorts of conditions.
